16 min

If you're visiting Verbania, you can't miss the Gardens of Villa Taranto—even if it's just for a short walk along their beautiful paths. These stunning gardens are the result of the vision and dedication of Captain Neil McEacharn, who began the project in 1931. His dream lives on thanks to the tireless work of the garden's management team and gardeners, who care for over 16,000 m² of grounds, 7 km of walking paths, and more than 115,000 plants. Visiting Villa Taranto is like embarking on a journey through foreign, wild, and exotic lands.

SPECIAL LOCAL TIPS

It is ideal to spend on eday just walking smoothly from Intra to Suna. Villa taranto is 15 min walk away from Intra, and then you can continue your walk.

Meet Roberto, the heart of Villa Taranto since 1979

ENTE GIARDINI BOTANICI
VILLA TARANTO

Roberto is the beating heart of Villa Taranto, the botanical garden once named by Needs as the number one in the world.

He has devoted his body, mind, and soul to the gardens since 1979, finding his greatest reward in the wonder expressed by visitors.

His lifelong motivation has been simple yet powerful: "To show people something they didn't think could exist."

Even in challenging times, Roberto remains steadfast. Today, the garden flourishes with over 80,000 hand-planted bulbous plants, including magnificent tulips that bloom each April. In 2012, a tornado tore through the grounds, toppling 620 tall trees—but the garden endured, and continues to thrive.

Roberto's connection to the garden runs deep—it's in his blood. The story began with his father, who served as the right-hand man to the Scottish tycoon who founded Villa Taranto.

That Scottish captain, the owner of a shipping company operating between England and Australia, purchased the villa and surrounding lands in 1931. His dream was to recreate a true Scottish garden on the slopes of Castagnola in Verbania. He traveled the world four times, by land and sea, collecting rare plants and flowers to bring his vision to life. In 1952, the gardens were opened to the public.

Roberto's father remained a central figure in the garden's team until 1976, when he passed the torch—along with his passion and deep knowledge—to his son. Since then, Roberto has nurtured the garden with unwavering care, watching his love for it grow stronger each day.

Meet Eros, the Verbania cheese refiner!

Eros is one of the most renowned cheese experts in Northern Italy, and he proudly calls Verbania-Intra his home base.

The origins of Eros' journey are rooted deep in time. His family once ran a small shop in the heart of Verbania-Intra, where, day by day—his passion for discovering and trading cheeses and traditional products from the Lake Maggiore region and its valleys steadily grew.

Today, Eros is recognized as one of Italy's top cheese refiners. Alongside his wife Cristina, he has transformed the family's humble shop into a destination where tradition and innovation blend in perfect harmony.

They've established a cheese aging cellar in the heart of Verbania-Intra, along with a cozy tasting space where visitors can sample their finest selections.

If you'd like to experience the products they've carefully chosen for those who want to fully enjoy their holiday while immersing themselves in local culture, be sure to book a table. Let me introduce you to Pier, captain for passion.

Pier has a deep love for water — his favorite element — and for Lake Maggiore, with its rich geology, history, and literature. His knowledge of the lake runs deep, a passion inherited from his father, a devoted diver.

In 1982, after serving as a sergeant in the Italian Navy, Pier bought his first small boat. He lovingly restored it to fulfill his dream: to sail freely across his beloved lake and share its hidden wonders with others.

Today, Pier lives that dream every day — now aboard his new boat, the Signora Paola

.His greatest satisfaction? Watching guests step ashore with wonder in their eyes, after exploring the lake's secret corners and hearing real stories — like when Stendhal and Lord Byron fell in love with Lake Maggiore during the Grand Tour, or when Hemingway stayed here to write A Farewell to Arms.

His motto? "Promise 9 and give 10."

For Pier, it's never just about transportation — it's about exceeding expectations, creating unforgettable moments, and making every wish come true. Pier and his lady Paola can pick you up right at the pier in front of Hotel Ancora.

If you'd like Pier to be your local guide on Lake Maggiore, scan the QR code — and get ready for a truly memorable day.

*"People are different, of different nationalities, cultures, social classes, ages,
But antiquity and real-life stories intrigue and excite everyone.
In the end, you can't help but fall in love with this wonderful and magical place."*

INTRA, PALLANZA, SUNA

Short on time but eager to see it all? Take a walk, go for a run, or hop on a bike and follow the scenic path along the lake. It's a beautiful way to experience Lake Maggiore from a fresh perspective — and if you're lucky, you might even catch a glimpse of blooming private gardens tucked just out of sight.

THE CANDOGLIA QUARRY

Upstream of the hamlet of Candoglia, in the municipality of Mergozzo, on the left of the Toce river and right at the mouth of the Val d'Ossola, in Piedmont

Its crystalline beauty mottled with pink, combined with the great resistance due to its exceptional physical-chemical characteristics, has made an extraordinarily valuable contribution to the construction of the Monument and has conditioned its architecture, statics and ornamental part.

It was Gian Galeazzo Visconti who decided to replace the brick, originally designed for the construction of the Duomo in the initial project, with marble. To this end, on 24 October 1387, he gave the use of the Candoglia Quarry to the Veneranda Fabbrica and granted free transport of the marbles to Milan via the waterways.

The transport of the material to Milan took place from the Toce to Lake Maggiore, along the Ticino and the Naviglio Grande and then inside the city to the dock of Sant'Eustorgio. Through the system of locks, built by the Fabbrica, it reached the Laghetto (today Via Laghetto), a few hundred meters from the construction site of the Cathedral, in the heart of the city.

PARK PALLAVICINO

Villa Pallavicino was originally built as a private residence in 1855, when the area was acquired by Ruggero Bonghi, a Neapolitan statesman and writer.

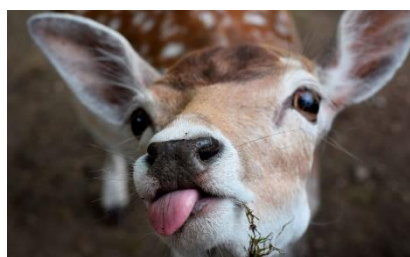

Later, the estate passed to the Duke of Vallombrosa, and in 1862 it was acquired by the noble Genoese Pallavicino family. They expanded the grounds, constructed carriage roads, adorned the park with statues, and transformed the simple residence into the splendid nineteenth-century neoclassical villa that still stands on the hill today.

It was Marquise Luisa, in 1952, who completed the transformation by bringing animals from around the world to create an exceptional zoo.

In 1956, the Pallavicino family decided to open their magnificent garden as a wildlife museum accessible to the public. Since 2017, Pallavicino Park has been part of the Terre Borromeo circuit.

More than 60 species of mammals and birds are housed here, including some wild animals rescued by the forest ranger that would not survive if released back into the wild.

TEA PLANTATION

Via Milano,
Premosello-Chiovenda VB

There is a magical place near Lake Maggiore — the unique territory of the Ossola Valley, rich in parks and natural oases of rare beauty, dotted with historic villages and a treasure trove of culture, ancient traditions, and folklore.

It is in Val d'Ossola, on the Premosello plantation, that our project was born: to create and distribute a precious all-Italian tea, lovingly grown and produced.

This venture began with the collaboration between La Via del Tè and La Compagnia del Lago Maggiore, bringing together the expertise of the Carrai and Zacchera families, both seasoned growers of camellia flowers who, several years ago, successfully started cultivating tea camellias.

The Premosello plantation currently hosts around 20,000 Camellia sinensis plants, many propagated from seeds originating in Rize, Turkey, at various stages of growth, with plans to expand in the coming years. By size, it is the second-largest tea plantation in Europe and the first in Italy capable of ensuring a consistent and appreciable tea production.

This special place benefits from a unique microclimate, nestled by the Toce River and surrounded by the pristine majesty of the Alpine peaks.

You can reserve green tea bags via the website

Daniela first became a tour guide and driven by her passion for natural and eco-sustainable exploration, she further trained as an environmental hiking guide and Nordic Walking instructor.

What makes Daniela happiest is captivating and inspiring her travel companions by sharing the history and traditions of the area. Her greatest motivation is “seeing in their eyes the desire to come back again to discover more of this wonderful territory.”
